Bio

A mindset and business success strategist, Marlene Cameron is an award-winning coach, skilful trainer and international speaker. She helps women in business embrace their innate clarity and confidence to be more insightful, impactful and influential leaders.

In spite of successful careers as a commercial interior designer with a six-figure business, management consultant and financial analyst. Marlene experienced ongoing insecurity and her own impostor feelings. After years of looking for a resolution, she discovered what was for her, the missing link. An understanding called the Three Principles provided the foundation for inner peace and well-being. She now shares this understanding so that others can discover their own innate capacity for greater success, fulfillment and happiness.

When not learning, working with clients or being coached herself, Marlene is a golfer by day and tango dancer by night.
